Rev. C. H. Ricketts spoke on the topic, What the Age Has a Right to Expect of Its Young Men. We must consider what the past, say 50 years ago, offered the young man with what it offere today, said the speaker, to realize what this age should expect of the man, especially the young man. The past half century has been one of the greatest advance in science and mechanical discovery, and as the age young man opportunities once un-dreamed of. The age today asks of the young man the best of ability and profoundest consecration, and in re-turn offers much more than ever before. But greater than the material opportunities to the young man is the ovan whether he wished to say uncovering of material privileges there have crept in material evils. If we going to Mr. Hill's office about an inenjoy material blessings we cannot surance policy notice and their converlook the material shadows. The versation drifted into a discussion to men, and deaf indeed is the man who fails to hear this cry of protest and appeal rising from the heart of the people, greater than the cry rising out of Macedonia, "Come over and help us." The great social problems of today must be settled in the great name of the strikes and hermatic No. 200 ever along the strike and hermatic not set the strike and hermatic not strike and the s
